Planting tulip bulbs

Tulip bulbs are often associated with the Netherlands. Although they do not originate from our transatlantic neighbors, they thrive on the temperate climate found in the Netherlands as well as in North America. All the tulips need is a bit of sun and moderate rainfall for them to grow strong and bloom bright. When planting the tulip bulbs it is important to:

- Plant the Royal Oxford tulip blend in a sunlit or half shade spot in the yard or field;
- Plant the bulbs approximately four inches deep and two inches apart from one another;
- Plant them at least eight weeks before the first frost, between September and December.
